ASSISTING OUR KIDS

Online Parenting Program For Divorcing Families

AOK helps parents work together to develop a positive co-parenting relationship

The original AOK Program was developed in response to the Ohio Supreme Court's initiative to provide parent education for families involved in divorce, custody, and paternity issues.

Since its inception in 1992, AOK has provided educational services for thousands of families experiencing divorce. It was created to increase parental understanding of the impact of divorce on children and provides assistance in the development of co-parenting skills. Designed to help parents reduce conflict, the program assists both parents and children with the changes that will occur in their families following a divorce.

AOK Online provides users with the same education and information presented in the live version. The program is not only available to parents, but any individuals involved in the lives of children, such as step-parents, grandparents, and caregivers. We encourage courts and school personnel and other professionals interested in helping families take the online course.

AOK Online Covers:

- *Children's reaction to divorce
- *Children's reaction to parental conflict
- *Stages of grief
- *Changing roles
- *Legal issues
- *Development of parenting plan
- *Divorce and its developmental effects on children
- *Conflict resolution/program solving
- *Cooperative/collaborative parenting
- *Parental communication
- *Domestic violence issues
- *Step-parenting
- *Absentee parent
